

January 19, 2010

Dear Parents,

Every year the math department celebrates "Math Week" with a variety of activities for our math students.

This year we are having most of our activities on Thursday, MARCH 18.

We are seeking parents who use math extensively in the workplace to give a 15 minute presentation to our students on how math is valued and used in their jobs. Your presentation would be repeated several times during the day to allow many small groups of students to listen. Any time you could provide would be appreciated. You can spend the entire day with us or just part of the day. Our school day starts at 8:00 a.m. and ends at 2:30 p.m. (Lunch will be provided for presenters.)

The television shows "Numb3rs" and "CSI" have renewed interest in math and science. While we don't expect to have FBI agents or criminologists among our parents, many of you do use math in interesting ways in your jobs. This would be a great forum to share your knowledge with our students and get them interested in the field of mathematics.

The presentation time would also serve as parent service hours.

If you would be able to offer a math presentation to our students please contact Dan Moynihan at Archbishop Murphy High School or you can return the form below with your student.

dmoynihn@am-hs.org
425-379-6363

Math Week Celebration
March 18, 2010

Parent Name: _____

Student Name: _____

Math Topic: _____ (15 minutes)

Hours you are available to present to our students: _____

Thank you,
The AMHS Math Department