

2010 Recommended Reading List

– It’s not just for summer, anymore –

This list of recommended books for college-bound high school students was compiled by the AMHS Library-Media staff. It is a compilation of recommended reading from four different sources: AMHS faculty, The American Library Association (ALA), the College Board, and Princeton University.

While AMHS recommendations are for specific classes, none of the other sources have age, maturity or grade levels assigned; all titles are considered to be part of a college freshman’s basic cultural and literary background.

The ALA uses three levels: Recommended, highly recommended, and very highly recommended. The College Board lists the “Top 100 Books” as crucial to success in college. Princeton University lists books that Princeton considers necessary for success in college.

The final column tells where students can find the title in the AMHS Library-Media Center, if the title is on order, or if the AMHS library does not have it.

All of these titles are recommended by reputable sources. Books recommended by AMHS faculty have additional sources vouching for their benefit in the high school classroom.

However, not all titles are for all readers. Emotional maturity, intellectual curiosity, and comprehension do not always correlate with age or grade level. We recommend that parents and students review the list together to make decisions about which books to read.

Please contact AMHS Librarian Nicolette Roberge with any questions.
